A POSITIVE ANSWER TO PORNOGRAPHY

What's the best way to deal with the growing problem of pornography around our country? Such things as legal pressure and boycotts have all been used, but many people view these as rather negative.

Two men in the Philadelphia area are now busy trying to promote a positive answer to pornography. They are Rev. Alfred S. Taylor, President of Hearthstone Publications of Williamsport, Pennsylvania; and W. P. Nickols, a Philadelphia businessman. Together these two set up the Hearthstone Corporation to place paperback book racks in stores, hotels, and even banks throughout the nation.

The first rack was placed in a Holiday Inn, and sales immediately averaged forty to fifty books a week. The inn keeper wrote Hearthstone to say, "Many of our guests pick up equal number of books from the rack as they do from our regular magazine rack. We are so glad we put these books in – plus there is a nice profit return."

The Wake County Hospital in Raleigh, North Carolina, wrote after six months with the Hearthstone Rack, "They are a wonderful addition to our operation. Many of the books are purchased for use by visitors to the hospital, and many are taken to patients as gifts."

Today in a little more than eight months Hearthstone distributors have moved nearly two hundred thousand Christian paperbacks. An entire sales organization has developed, and distributors are at work from East to West Coast under the Hearthstone Plan.

One man called long distance to the Hearthstone office to say he had read his Bible everyday since getting one of the books and reading it. He claimed that he had not read his Bible for years. One secular service club plans to sponsor racks in restaurants.

When asked about needs and plans for the future, Al Taylor said, "Right now we need people who can get into the business and especially those who can supervise others and help us train people to reach others. We also need Christian business people in secular location who can open rack locations to our books."

Is anyone around the Appomattox - Lynchburg area interested in this? For further information you can write to Hearthstone Publications, 915 Fifth Avenue, Box 567, Williamsport, Pennsylvania, 17701.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

GOD WILLS WHOLENESS

Background Scripture: Luke 4:31-40; 5, 12-26; 8:1-3, 26-56.
Devotional Reading: Isaiah 61:1-4

No concept so disturbs me in my pastoral work than the frequently stimulated belief that tragedies represent God's will. A child is killed and someone "comforts" the parents with the assurance that "It must have been God's will." A husband is lost to the ravages of cancer and we are told that "It was meant to be."

The Enemy Of God

Remarks such as these, well-intentioned though they may be, verge on blasphemy, for they make God the source of evil as well as good. Jesus, however, never saw it that way. Thumb through the gospels and you will find that Jesus regarded illness and brokenness as the enemies of God. The evil spirits he cast out of the possessed were never addressed as God's little "helpers." Healing and the bestowal of wholeness were always regarded as a divine victory over evil, the vanquishing of a foe. Look again at the stories of Jesus' feats of healing. Even though he was frequently approached by the less desirable elements of society, we never find Jesus saying, "I'm sorry, you are not righteous enough to receive healing." Although requests for his healing ministry frequently came from those who were not even Jews, he never turned anyone away because of their theology, their doctrines, their religious practices – or the lack of them. Healing was never meted out to people because they deserved it.

Nor do we find Jesus ever saying, "I'm sorry, but I think you will be better-off by remaining ill." He never suggested that God had made them ill for their own good, their spiritual growth. In short, Jesus seems never to have wondered whether it was God's will to heal anyone. He never prefaced his prayers for wholeness with "If it be your will, heal....."

The Will Of God

Have you ever stopped to think that if illness were God's will, Jesus would have been opposing the will of God with his ministry of healing? If God wanted people to be broken, why would Jesus have set them free? Furthermore, if you believe God may will you to be ill or broken in some way, why do you go to the doctor to be made whole? If God wants to be ill, are you not opposing him by seeking medical help?

Jesus apparently believed that God's will for men is wholeness just as it is righteousness. Just as he wants us to live by the laws of righteousness, he desires us to live by the laws of wholeness and health.

So Jesus came as the healing Christ because he knew that God wills wholeness for his children.

Senior 4-H

At the regular meeting of the senior 4-H Clubs this month, the members were privileged to hear Mrs. Laura Swartz Roach, the International Farm Youth Exchange (IFYE) delegate to Nepal, India.

Mrs. Roach, now employed as an extension agent in Bedford county, was selected to make the overseas trip while she was a student at Bridgewater College.

Mrs. Roach qualified for this honor as an outstanding 4-H member and as an outstanding 4-H leader in the Buckingham 4-H program.

The speaker presented her experiences in visiting and living with a selected family in Nepal. The customs, food and religious ceremonies centering around the sacred cow fascinated the 4-H audience. Mrs. Roach showed a series of slides of the people at work, their homes and the beautiful landscape of Nepal. Doug Webb and Joanne Elder helped to model the attire of the natives. The speaker was also dressed in native costume of the women of Nepal.

The group enjoyed the presentation due to the fact that there were so many questions following Mrs. Roach's presentation.

PRIZES WON FOR THREE RIGHT ANSWERS

"Walk with the Winner" is the name of the show, and Mrs. Tilden Lee has three prizes to show right answers on a recent radio quiz from WSVS, Crewe, Virginia.

Mrs. Lee explains that there were four questions, actually, with a prize offered for each correct answer, and with her good score of three out of four she now has a large, 28 inch ship model, a record of a recent hit and a game for the grandchildren to enjoy.

She's no stranger to prize winning. For years she's been a top contender for ribbons at the Five County Fair and the annyal Virginia State Fair, competing in various classes of canned goods and craftwork including plaster casts and ceramics and the making and dressing of dolls.

Letter To The Editor

Appomattox, Va.
Jan. 5, 1972

The Times-Virginian
Appomattox, Va.

Sir:

The long wonderful Christmas holidays are over and the children are back in school, find yours board the familiar yellow bus on schedule last Monday morning and return home that same day? If they did, count your blessings for you are blessed indeed.

We took our son to school a hundred miles away and left him, assuring him cheerfully (?) that we would see him next month, that time would pass quickly and so on and so on.

It was, as always, a heartrearing experience. And it will never be any easier.

We forced ourselves to go through this torment because we want our son to have an education and, because he has a learning problem(, he can't get it here in Appomattox County.

We know we aren't alone. There are possibly sixty sets of parents, probably more, somewhere in this county whose children also need special help that isn't available.

Special Education could be available. What we need to do is ask why it isn't and what we can do to make it available.

Our children can't say much for themselves but we can speak for them and we must. We gave them life and we owe them a chance. We deserve duely needed Special Education Classes in our public school system.

There's no problem that does not have a solution if enough people care enough to work at finding it. And we parents of children with learning problems should care most of all.

Very sincerely,
Carol Myers Martin

Dear Sir:

The letter to the editor sent in by Dr. Lea last week expresses my feelings also.

I am very much in agreement that we have enough problems with alcoholic beverages in our county without having them sold in our grocery stores.

If we don't protest such actions, I'm afraid we will be living with the results.

Sincerely,
Norma H. Moore

MISS CRAWFORD'S 4-H

On Friday, January 7, 1972, President Cynthia Hix opened our meeting. Secretary, Jerry Womack, read the minutes. Melinda McIntosh and Seth Jones led in some songs. Shelia Goin, Lisa Dickerson, Randy Hipps, Tom Hix, and Nancy Scruggs gave demonstrations.

Mr. Sweet told us about Public Speaking. Everyone read a sentence about public speaking on the tape recorder.

Mrs. James showed us how to do some charcoal sketching.

The meeting was adjourned.
